Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 22 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny start then clouding over later with some rain.

Today:
A dry and bright start with plenty of sunshine. However, cloud will thicken with patchy light rain developing in the west in the afternoon, staying bright and dry in the east until evening. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Tonight:
Rain and cloud spreading east to all parts in the evening, some heavier spell of rain during the night too but becoming very patchy by dawn. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Wednesday:
Mostly cloudy with occasional rain and drizzle, some fog and low cloud forming too in the light winds. Still feeling quite warm and muggy. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
dry with some brightness to start on Thursday but rain spreading south, drier later. Bright or sunny on Friday and Saturday and feeling fresher too.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.